Congratulations, Jim, from your

You are a true human needs

Jim Weill

Over his long career as a social justice advocate, Jim Weill has held a variety of policy advocacy, research and litigation leadership positions. His work throughout has been directed at reducing U.S.

hunger and poverty, protecting the legal rights of low-income people, expanding health insurance coverage, and building economic security and food security.

After law school Jim worked for over a decade at the Legal Assistance Foundation of Chicago, for most of that time as Deputy Director and Director of Federal Litigation and Special Impact Projects. He was counsel in several cases on plenary review in the U.S. Supreme Court, arguing two of them; was lead counsel on several cases in the Federal Court of Appeals; and oversaw the Foundation's team of attorneys handling more than 100 federal class action and impact cases on Social Security, Medicaid, AFDC, Food Stamps, housing assistance, unemployment insurance, other public benefits, immigration, and prisoners' rights, and challenges to discrimination against racial minorities, women and children born out of wedlock.

From 1982 to 1998, Jim was Program Director and General Counsel of the Children's Defense Fund, where he provided leadership on: Medicaid expansion, enactment of CHIP, the Vaccines for Children Program, and three major Earned Income Tax Credit expansions; initiatives in child care, child support enforcement, income support nutrition and federal budget issues; and work on children's rights.

Jim has been President of the Food Research and Action Center (FRAC) since 1998. During that time FRAC has led efforts to expand participation and improve benefits in key anti-hunger and anti-poverty programs, with particular emphasis on SNAP (food stamps), school lunch and breakfast, afterschool and summer food programs, child care food, WIC, and income supports like the refundable Child Tax Credit. FRAC also has greatly strengthened its network of state and local partners and launched anti-hunger advocacy groups in Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Jim is chair of the Children's Leadership Council, the coalition of national children's groups, and a member of the board of the National Center for Youth Law. He serves on the advisory council to the National League of Cities Institute for Youth, Education and Families.

Jim was a member of the founding boards of the National Clearinghouse for Legal Services (now the Shriver Center) and the Poverty & Race Research Action Council; chaired the Alliance for Justice for more than a dozen years (and still chairs the AFJ Action Council); and served for many years on the boards of OMB Watch, the Illinois Civil Liberties Union, and the National Health Law Program. He has served as a member of the U.S. delegation to the UNICEF Executive Board.

Jim has a B.A. from Cornell University and a J.D. from NYU.

Congratulations to Jim Weill

About the Coalition on Human Needs

CHN is an alliance of national organizations working together to promote federal policies to address the needs of low-income and other vulnerable people. The Coalition's members include service providers, policy experts, religious, labor, and civil rights organizations, and other advocates concerned with the well-being of low-income people, including children, women, seniors, and people with disabilities.

Since 1981, the Coalition has been promoting policies to reduce poverty and expand opportunity. Recognizing that poverty reduction and broadly shared economic growth require investment of public dollars, CHN works for adequate funding for effective human needs programs and progressive tax policies.

CHN has been a leader in the SAVE for All campaign (Strengthening America's Values and Economy for All), bringing together many thousands of advocates nationwide in support of four principles essential in federal budget or deficit reduction plans: protect low-income and vulnerable people; incorporate investments to create jobs; pay for sustainable public programs through increased revenues from fair sources; and seek savings by targeting wasteful spending in the Pentagon and other areas. More than 1,900 organizations nationwide have signed a letter to Congress in support of these principles, and are active in working for them. Through SAVE for All, CHN has helped to organize well over one hundred Hill visits, convened conference calls, released reports and assisted in organizing events with advocates in many states.

Educating human needs advocates about the threats and opportunities in the federal budget process and about how to use economic and poverty data to make the case for effective policies is an important part of the Coalition's mission. Each year, CHN presents webinars on these topics with thousands of registrants. CHN also educates advocates in the use of national, state, and local poverty, income, and health insurance data. Fifty years after the Johnson era "war on poverty," there has been considerable progress, but poverty rates are stubbornly high and barriers to opportunity are growing. CHN shares analyses of antipoverty proposals, especially those by its members, and helps advocates to add their voices to the national debate about how to reduce poverty.

CHN serves as a clearinghouse for information on poverty and federal human needs issues through a bi-monthly newsletter, The Human Needs Report, legislative analyses, and other timely updates shared with email lists well exceeding 60,000 nationwide. CHN convenes meetings, forums, and working groups of member organizations to share information and implement effective strategies. Every other Friday when Congress is in session CHN hosts a meeting of advocates for information-sharing.

This year, CHN has introduced a new blog, Voices for Human Needs: Fighting Poverty and Expanding Opportunity for All, as a new means of sharing information and engaging concerned people.

To join the Coalition on Human Needs and to sign up for email alerts, updates, and Voices for Human Needs, go to CHN's website at www.chn.org.

CHN is pleased to announce the recent launch of our new blog!

Our blog shares perspectives and evidence about what helps people get out of poverty, and what stands in the way. We shine a light on the choices Congress makes that all too often leave the “voiceless” out in the cold. We also seek comments from our human needs community.

Features include:

FACT OF THE WEEK

Weekly facts, like: “Since FY2010, At Least 119 Important Human Needs Programs Have Been Cut, 99 By More Than 10%”

Outrageous policy choices or general wrong-headedness, like: “House Committee Takes Revenue that Could Have Helped the Jobless to Fund Highway Bill.”

Commentary on the news, like: “You Say Potato: Congress Mashes it Up over WIC Food Package.”

Occasional interviews, like: “Elnora’s Story: A Voice for the Unemployed”

If you have ideas for topics, would like to be a guest blogger (a great way to promote your org’s campaign or new report), or have suggestions for someone who would make a great interviewee, contact Lecia Imbery at limbery@chn.org.
