Two-Thirds of Human Needs Programs Have Lost Ground Since 2010; Decisions to Lift Caps Allow Gains in More Recent Years

Over the past decade, a large number of programs providing health care, housing, training and education, nutrition, child welfare and other social services of special importance to low-income people have seen significant reductions. Budget caps in place since 2011 have constrained spending for domestic and international appropriated programs, although Congress has lifted the caps over the past four years, allowing for some important growth. Expanded funding has not been distributed evenly, however. Veterans' health care costs rose 48 percent over the decade, while all other domestic appropriations dropped 4 percent, adjusted for inflation. Many services disproportionately assisting low-income people were cut much more deeply from FY 2010 to FY 2020.

Of the 191 programs tracked by the Coalition on Human Needs, two-thirds (127) were funded at a lower level than in FY 2010, adjusted for inflation. More than one-quarter of these (49 programs) lost 25 percent or more over the decade. Nearly six out of ten (112) dropped by more than 10 percent. Funding for home heating and cooling assistance for low-income people declined by more than 30 percent; local juvenile delinquency prevention was cut by 46 percent. Child welfare services funding dropped by more than 20 percent. Housing for persons with disabilities declined by nearly 44 percent. WIC nutrition funding for young children and pregnant women dropped over 30 percent.

In contrast, 58 percent of the programs tracked by CHN made gains in the past year (111 programs). Another 73 programs (38 percent) were flat-funded from FY 2019 to FY 2020; only 7 programs out of the 191 tracked were cut. These one-year comparisons do not adjust for inflation; in reality, all the flat-funded programs lost value when inflation is taken into account. Child care funding rose from $5.3 billion to $5.8 billion, continuing advances that more than doubled its funding since FY 2010, adjusted for inflation. Substance use disorder funding rose by more than $2 billion over the decade. Homeless assistance grants rose from about $2.64 billion to $2.78 billion in the past year; the Commodity Supplemental Food Program, providing home-delivered meals to low-income seniors, increased from $223 million to $245 million from FY 2019 to FY 2020. In program after program, including housing, education, job training, and health services, there were at least modest increases in the past year. Congress was able to fund more increases in FY 2020 than it had in the previous year, when only 35 percent of the programs CHN tracked gained funds.

The welcome progress made in FY 2020 could be temporary. In the two-year Bipartisan Budget Act of 2019, the increase allowed for FY 2021 is much smaller than the funding provided for FY 2020. Capped funding for domestic and international appropriations rises only by $5 billion, to $626.5 billion; another $6.2 billion is available because the extra decennial census spending will have ended and there is an increase in mortgage insurance fees that help fund housing programs. Still, continued increases in veterans' health care costs could easily swallow that entire amount, and other necessary increases, such as to cover rising rent costs in subsidized housing, could easily see a return of flat-funding and cuts for many needed services. Unmet needs remain an urgent concern: nearly half of households with incomes under $35,000 are paying half or more of their income on rent; 5 out of 6 eligible children still receive no child care assistance; drug overdoses caused more than 70,000 deaths in 2017.

The Trump FY 2021 budget proposal would dramatically worsen the picture by dropping domestic and international appropriations well below the amount he agreed to when he signed the Bipartisan Budget Act. He would drop domestic appropriations to $595 billion in FY 2021, $77 billion below all the capped and uncapped funds available for the same programs in FY 2020. Domestic and international appropriations would decline from 3.0 percent of GDP to 2.5 percent in just one year, and then decline steadily to only 1.4 percent of GDP in 2030. Congress must reject these drastic cuts and work to prevent further losses in appropriated programs that serve low-income people.
